Museums and Galleries aren't always the first thing that comes to mind when people, especially young people, think about travelling. As ~~the~~ new generations ~~are~~ starting to take over museums seem to disappear ~~of~~ from people's radars. But why? I think people should jump at every opportunity to learn more about the world and even themselves.

But as a quick look at social statistics data reveals that isn't the case. ~~with some~~ Just look at Natural History Museum and the science Museum, the amount of visitors shrunk drastically in just 4 years. Why don't these Museums appeal to people anymore? I have a theory. I believe that ~~the~~ Museums don't rate as high as they used to because of the Internet, there's so much information online in all kinds of formats that people don't feel like they need to go to the Museums anymore. ~~to fix that~~ ~~for this~~ Now, fixing this problem is not so easy, but my advice is to plan more interactive events, you can look ~~at a painting~~ ~~of a painting~~ up a picture of ~~a painting, a sculpture~~ or some ancient clothing, but what if you could wear it, that's a lot more exciting.

And sure you can look at the number of visitors ~~of~~ of the British Museum, for example, and think that Museums are fine just because the numbers are steadily increasing, but you've got to keep in mind, the British Museum is one of the most famous British landmarks, of course the number of visitors will be more substantial. ~~the~~ But for me it's still small, 5,6 million? is nothing considering the population and the amount of tourists coming to England, every year. What can ~~Museums~~ big Museums do to ~~be able to~~ increase the number of visitors besides doing more interactive events? Try making the program more exciting, instead of telling people when a certain artist was born for the hundredth time, talk more about his life, where he was when he created this painting ~~etc.~~ etc.

In conclusion, I want to encourage you to go and visit a Museum, learn more about history ~~yourself~~ ~~best~~ of the world and yourself.
